Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year
A Happy New Year

POOR little maid,
quite vexed indeed.
She stops to speak,
he pays no heed;
Yet seems she fair
and winning too;
Ah friend - the blame
must lie with you!
My CHRISTMAS greeting, love & kiss
To you he bears, then tell me this:
What must he look in you to find
Who leaves so sweet a maid behind?

IN a dream I saw them stand,
Hope and Memory, hand in hand:
Hope's sweet face was hid from view,
But I knew it pure and true.
Memory stood with tender gaze
Fixed upon the bygone days;
Wistful eyes, but fair and clear,
All undimmed by shame or fear:
This I, dreaming, seemed to see;
This my CHRISTMAS prayer for thee.

COMPLIMENTS OF THE SEASON TO YOU.
Once more, it is Christmas time
How quickly a year speeds on
I can hear the midnight chime
I dream of the angels song
Still my thoughts are wandering far away
Full of good wishes for Christmas day.

Bright be

they told us
You had passed away;
Who are these ye send us?
What have they to say?
Just the good, old greeting,
"Friend, good-day!"

Bring it smile or sigh,
Surely we "Good-morrow"
Will reply. — G. P. MEADE —

Your Birthday I hail,

COMING TO JESUS.

If I come to Jesus
He will hear my prayer,
For He loves me dearly,
And my sins did bear.

If I come to Jesus
He will take my hand;
He will kindly lead me
To the better land.

THE SAVIOUR'S LOVE.

I have read of a Saviour's love—
And a wonderful love it must be;
But did He come down from above,
Out of love and compassion for me?

Oh! yes; for His love is as wide
And as deep as the fathomless sea;
And love such as this will provide
Even blessings eternal for me.

AGAIN has come the Christmas Time,
Which tells us of the Truth sublime,
That He, who for our sins had birth,
This day became a Child of Earth;
Who, with the flesh at war, within,
Tempted as we are, did not sin,

BUT, as a Lily, ever pure,
Did Cross and Grave for us endure:
Not Solomon, in all his pride,
With one of these fair lilies vied,
May we, with meek and lowly heart,
Choose, like our LORD, the Better Part!
